Medicare: An overview

Medicare is federal health insurance for people 65 years or older. Medicare has 4 parts, including Part A and Part B, which are also known as Original Medicare.

Medicare Part A (Original Medicare) is hospital insurance. People aged 65 or older are eligible for free Part A if they or their spouse has worked and paid Medicare taxes for at least 10 years.

Medicare Part B (Original Medicare) is medical insurance. It is optional coverage that requires you to pay a monthly premium.

Medicare Part C (also known as Medicare Advantage) is coverage offered through private insurance companies that follow rules set by Medicare.

Medicare Part D is optional prescription drug coverage. It has a monthly premium, and the cost will vary from plan to plan.

Please see the charts on pages 4, 5, and 7 for more information on the different parts of Medicare.

For definitions of terms related to Medicare, please see the glossary on pages 14-15.

Medicare coverage options: A helpful summary

	Medicare Part A (Original Medicare)	Medicare Part B (Original Medicare)	Medicare Part C (Medicare Advantage)	Medicare Part D

It's important to know the differences between Original Medicare (Parts A and B) and Medicare Advantage (Part C)

Medicare Advantage, sometimes called Part C, is a health plan that private companies offer. There are many different Medicare Advantage plans to choose from. Before you join Medicare Advantage, take the time to find and compare plans in your area using Medicare's plan finder at Medicare.gov/plan-compare.

See the chart to the right for a comparison between Original Medicare and Medicare Advantage.

Because everyone's needs are unique, it's important to compare between Original Medicare and Medicare Advantage. Talk with your Takeda support specialist about which option may best cover your treatment needs.

Frequently asked questions about Medicare

When am I eligible to sign up for Medicare?

You're first eligible to sign up for Medicare in the period starting 3 months before the month of your 65th birthday and ending 3 months after it. That's a 7-month period when you can enroll in Medicare.

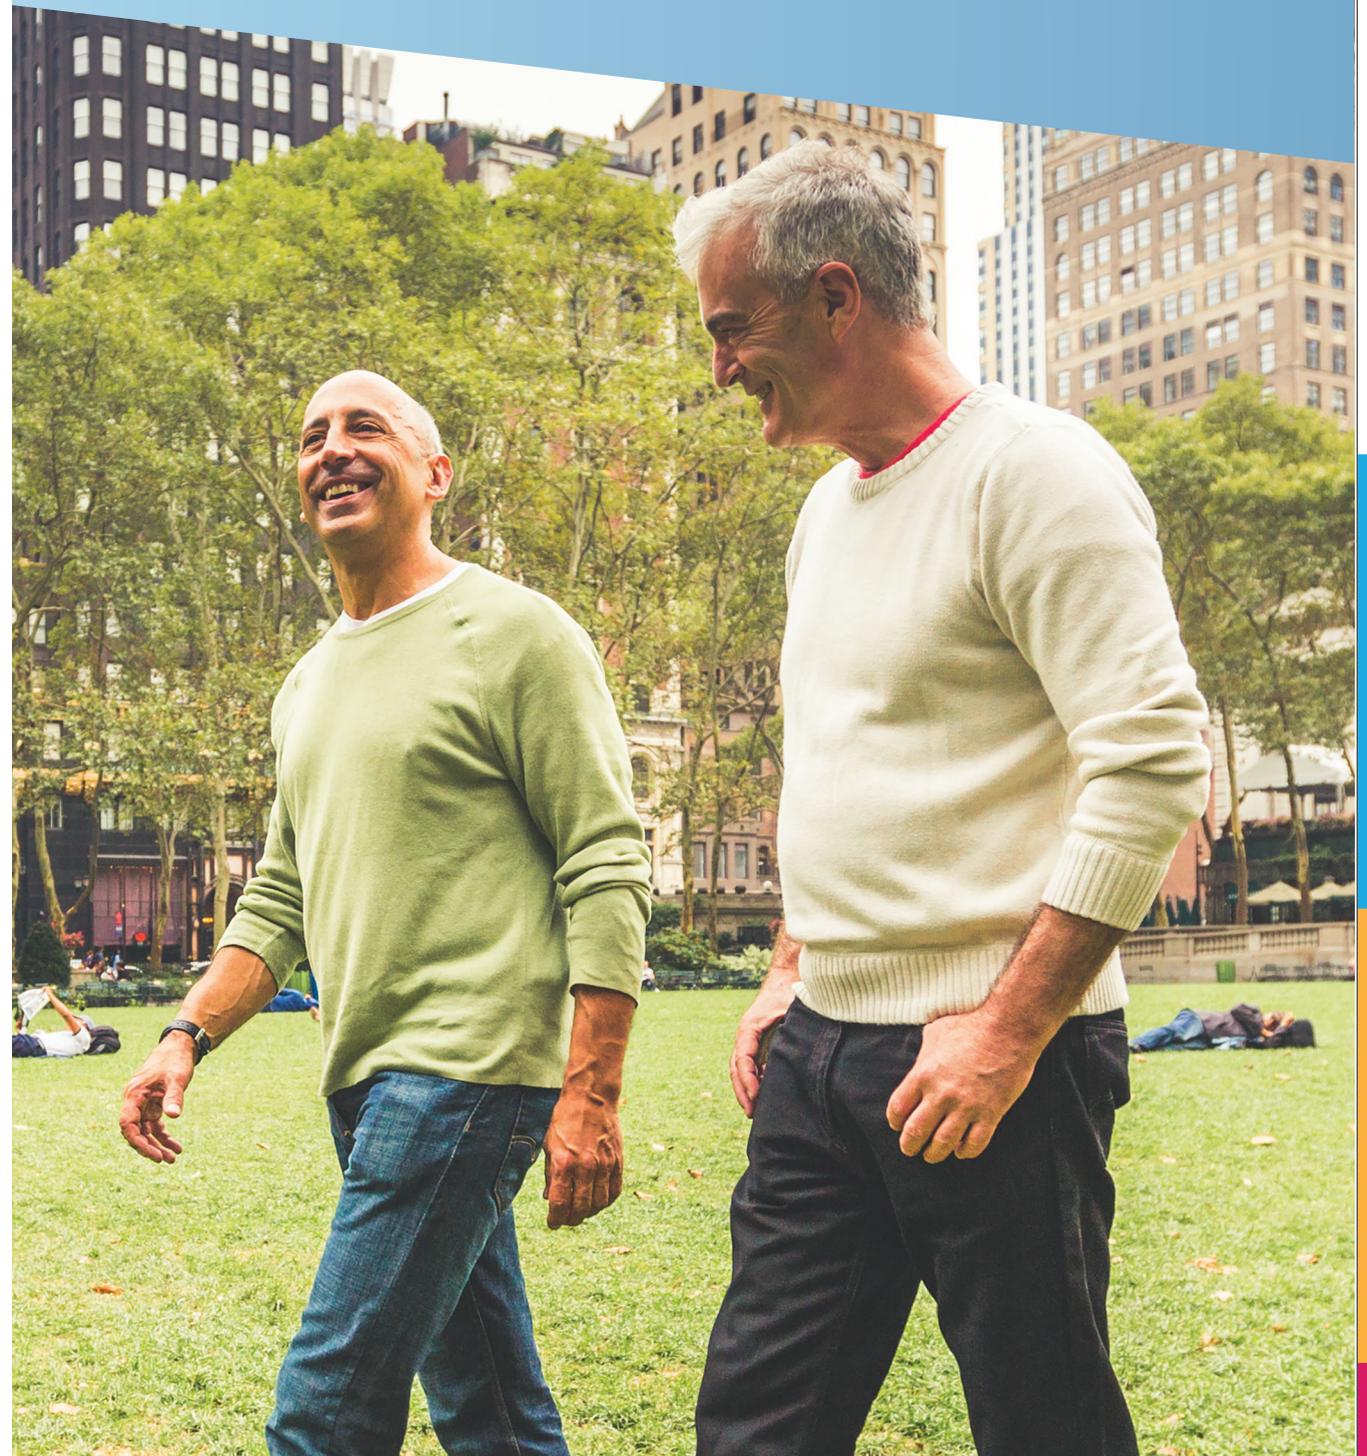

Do I have to sign up for both Medicare and Social Security?

- If you have been receiving Social Security benefits, you will be automatically enrolled in Medicare Part A and Part B on the first day of the month you turn 65. If you have just applied for benefits, you will be enrolled once you are approved. No action is needed from you to enroll
 - Since Part B has a monthly premium, you can choose whether to stay enrolled in it or not
- If you have not applied for Social Security and are not ready to, you must enroll in Medicare on the Social Security website at ssa.gov

What is the difference between Medicare and Medicaid?

- Medicare is a medical insurance program for people aged 65 or older and people with certain disabilities
- Medicaid is an assistance program that helps people of low income of any age pay for their medical expenses

You can be eligible for both Medicare and Medicaid. This is known as dual eligibility. For more information, visit Medicare.gov or talk to your Takeda support specialist.

Frequently asked questions about Medicare (cont'd)

What is Medigap (supplemental coverage)?

Medigap is supplemental health coverage that can help pay for services that aren't covered by Original Medicare. It can help cover healthcare costs like:

- Co-payments
- Coinsurance
- Deductibles

To qualify for Medigap, you must have Medicare Part A and Part B. You cannot have Medicare Advantage and Medigap at the same time. If you have Medicare Advantage, you can apply for a Medigap policy, but you must leave Medicare Advantage before Medigap coverage starts.

How do I sign up for Medigap?

1. Visit Medicare.gov/plan-compare and select Medigap policy only.
2. Decide which Medigap plan (A-N) best meets your needs.
3. Find Medigap policies in your area by entering your ZIP Code.
4. Compare prices for the policies in your chosen plan.
5. Visit the insurance provider website to buy the policy.

Glossary of key terms

Benefit period – The length of time that you received hospital and skilled nursing facility (SNF) services. A benefit period begins the day you're admitted as an inpatient in a hospital or SNF and ends when you haven't gotten any inpatient hospital/SNF care for 60 consecutive days.

Claim – A request submitted to Medicare asking for payment for covered healthcare services or supplies.

Co-payment – The amount you pay to a healthcare provider at the time of an appointment or other service. This amount may vary for different services within the same plan, including prescriptions, lab tests, or visits to specialists. Medicare Parts A and B typically don't have co-pays, but Medicare Advantage and Part D may.

Coinsurance – Your share of healthcare costs after you've met your deductible. So, for example, if your Medicare plan covers 80% of a service, you'll have to pay the other 20%. The 20% you pay is the coinsurance.

Deductible – The amount you must pay each year for covered prescriptions or healthcare services before your Medicare plan starts to pay. Once you have reached the plan's deductible amount for the year, you will most likely only pay the co-pay or coinsurance for any covered prescription or service after that. Your Medicare plan will pay the rest.

Medicare Savings Program – A Medicaid program that helps people with low income pay some or all of their Medicare costs.

Medicare-approved amount – In Original Medicare, this is the amount that Medicare will pay a provider or supplier for a service or prescription.

Premium – The amount you pay to Medicare, an insurance company, or a healthcare plan for health or prescription drug coverage every month.

Supplemental insurance – Insurance offered by private companies that helps with costs that are not covered by Original Medicare.

Survivors' benefits – Social Security benefits that are paid to the spouse or children of a deceased individual.

Out-of-pocket maximum – The most you have to pay for covered services in a plan year. After you spend this amount, your Medicare plan will pay the full cost of covered services for the rest of the year.
